A MAGNIFICENT SPECTACLE

Was the Great Knights Templar Parade in Washington.

A Clittering Pageant of Brilliant Colors Miles in Length and Reaching from Curb to Carb of the Broad Avenut-lieviewed by the Pres-Ment - West Virginia Kalghts Distinguish Themselves.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 8.—There was too much of the grand parade of Knights Templar to go into any detailed Knights deserve special mention for the part they took in the glittering pageant, specially Calvary Commandery, of Par kersburg. They were applauded all along the route. At the Grand Commandery reviewing stand the occupants with one accord, arose to their feet and boys. It was not the largest commandery in point of numerical strength, but was one of the best drilled. This was evi-one of the best drilled. This was evident from the applause bestowed upon it all along the line. They had stood three hours before their division of the line began to move and the march to the reviewing stand consumed quite as much more time. Captain Baker says he is much pleased with the creditable display his commandery made to-day. The members have presented him with an elegant Masonic watch and chain, beautifully set with diamonds.

The Graud Commandery of West Virgiois took their places in line and demonstrated to the gaze of thousands that West Virginia was not behind her sister States. Wheeling Commandery No. 1, of Wheeling, made a creditable-showing. Palestine Commandery No. 2, of Martinsburg, did not reach here until this morning. It put thirty members into line. Kanawha Commandery, of Charleston, had fifty Sir Knights in line, well drilled and uniformed. Charlestown was represented in line by twenty Sir Knights of Oyrene Commandery No. 7, of Wheeling, were in line. The Huntington Commandery No. 9, of Huntington, brought twenty-one. Knights in line, we night. Huntington Commandery No. 9, of Huntington, brought twenty-one Knights, Huntington Commandery is the young-est in the State of West Virginia, having been organized in June, 1886. The uniform worn is the regulation. Huntington carried one of the prettiest banners in the procession, having on it the full emblem, cross and crown, name, number and location marked in gold and silver buillon.

the procession the longest and finest that ever paraded on the wide, smooth ave-nue and streets of the National Capitol.

THE PARADE IN DETAIL.

Washington, Oct. 8 .- The Knights. glanced mournfully at a sullen threaten ing sky indicative of rain, and the chilliness of the air almost foreboded snow But as the hours wore away the sun broke through and dissipated the clouds and its cheerful rays were reflected from all their pomp and display seemed re-vived, but the aspect of the revival was vived, but the aspect of the revival was one of peace and civilization, not of war and barbarism. The long columns of soldiery with their georgeous plumes, the galloping mounted equeres, the fluttering banners, the martial music, the shrill and commanding trumpet calls, the throngs of admiring spectators were here. Only the fields of picturesque tents, the mounted battlements and mailed warriors of the middle ages were wanting to make the picture complete.

BRILLIANT SCHNES Ever, where was bustle, animation and brilliant coloring. The streets were througed with people and bright ban-ners and mystic insignia decorated the buildings in all parts of the city. Along een lavish in the use of bunting and banners, and the cross of the Templars faunted in the crisp October air. From the Treasury building, along both sides of the magnificent promenade leading to the capitol there was an uninterrupted display of the National colors and the insignia of the Templars. The use of the devices of the visiting orders permitted the adoption of some novel decrations, and the opportunity was liberally improved by the tusiness houses froming on the line of march, being a very pleasing variation from the ordinary devices of decoration. sanners, and the cross of the Templar banked two or three deep against the wire ropes that were stretched from the Capitol to the Treasury building, while a moving throng surged slowly up and down the pavement, on the lookout for a coign of vantage from which a good view might be obtained. A few belated commanderies arrived in the early morning, and donning their chapeaus and full regalia marched through the streets to the positions assigned them by the marshal of the day. It was predicted by the Templars that the crowd present to-day would exceed in numbers that which witnessed the isauguration of President Harrison, but this prediction was very far from belog realized. The streets were well filled with people and progress slow along the main thoroughlares, but by no means well night impossible, as was the case on the 4th of March.

A moderate estimate would place the number of visitors in town at about fifty thousand. The number of Knights in the city has been estimated at from fifthe city has been estimated at from fit-teen to twenty thousand, comprising over two hundred commanderies from all sections of the country. It was thought last night that of the number here, there would probably be about six-teen thousand to-day in line, or four thousand more than participated in the parade at the last triennial conclave in St. Louis.

The twelve divisions of the procession formed in the streets adjacent to the capitol, and debouching from the side streets at the signal of command filed into Jine and began the long march up Pennsylvania syenne, whose broad sur-face was perfectly level and smooth, having been newly laid with asphalt a short time soo.

face was perfectly level and smooth, having been newly laid with asphalt a short time ago.

The parade moved over a line of march three and a half miles long, beginning at First and B streets, east of the capitol, thence to F street; down F street to Pennsylvania avenue at the foot of Capitol Hill, and along Pennsylvania avenue past the Treasury building and White House to Washington Circle, where the parade moved into K street and down that street to Mount Vernon square where the commanderies were dismissed.

In front of the White House a stand was erected on the same site from which the President in March last reviewed the long columns of soldiery and civic organizations that formed the inaugural procession. From this stand the President reviewed the Knights. Another stand was erected on K street near the end of the line of march for the accommodation of the Most Eminent Grand Master, General Charles Roome, of New Master, General Charles Roome, of New York, who reviewed the parade.

THE START.

At eleven o'clock the procession started. The line was headed by eminent Sir Knight Myron M. Parker, of this city, Chief Marshal, and his staff, of which Sir Knight Harrison Lyngman was Chief.

Opposite the grand stand erected in front of the executive mansion, the beautiful foliage of the trees in Lafayette park, just tinged with the gorgeous nues of autumn, rustled in the bracing breeze as the spectators assembled on either side of the broad avenue awaited either side of the broad avenut awaited patiently the arrival of the procession and of President Harrison. Although the parade was to start from the capitul at 11 o'clock there was no indication of its approach at the White House as the bells of the city chimed the hour of noon. At this hour, the skies became overcast, and the warmth of the sun being temporarily withdrawn, the chilly wind caused the awaiting hundreds to draw more closely around them their overcoats and wraps. At half past twelve, President Harrison entered the reviewing stand leaning on the arm of Secretary President Harrison entered the review-ing stand leaning on the arm of Secretary Windom. He was followed by Secretaries Tracy, Noble and Rusk, Attorney General Miller, General Schoflelt and General Vincent, Assistant Adjutant General. They were accompanied by Mrs. Harrison, Dr. Scott, Mrs. Scott Lord, Mrs. Halford, Miss Sanger and several Indiana friends. The entrance of the Presidential party was the signal of the Presidential party was the signal for loud applause. A few moments after the President's for the protection from the Saracens of arrival the procession filed around the corner of Fifteenth street and marched with measured tread in front of the reviewing stand where President Harrison doffing his hat in response to the salutes which he was constantly offered. Cyrus M. Parker, with forty live aides on horseback, six or eight abreast, followed by the Washington commanderies, headed the processiou. They were accompanied by the Marine band, which accompanied by the Marine band, which passed the stand. Secretary Blaine, who intered the stand at this moment and intered the stand at this momett and bowed to the assembled multitude, was enthusiastically welcomed. The De-Molay Commandery, of the District, preceived by a square of mounted buglers, made a fine impression. It was followed by a processian of carriages, the foremost of which contained Grand Commander, Roome, who deferentially bowed to the President, who as deferentially returned the salute. Many of the ially returned the salute. Many of the officers of the grand encampment, as they rode by, stood on the carriage cush-ions while making their salutations to the Executive of the Nation.

HOW THE PARADE APPEARED. Around the columned porticos of the Capitol, down the concreted roadways of the Capitol grounds, under the swayof the Capitol grounds, under the swaying, over-reaching boughs of the autumntinted trees, the grand procession swept.
It was a flash of color, a gleam of snowy plumes, a glitter of bright steel, and a rythm of graceful movement. Such a spectacle has never before been seen in this city, famous for the number and grandeur of its parades. The wide plaza to the east of the great white marble building was packed with thousands of Knights, but as the procession moved there seemed to be no diminution in the number of those who stood like statues waiting for the word of command that put them in motion.

ACRES OF WHITE PLUMES.

ACRES OF WHITE PLUMES. As the showy column swept onward the Treasury building were warmed into a temporary splendor by heavy machine, up the broad and gally decomachine, up the broad and gaily decorations of the National colors, interspersed with shields bearing the heraldic devices of the visiting commanderies. Long streamers of red, white and blue haus from the pediments of the north, south and west portices and almost the building was hidden by huge American flags draped in grace-isl folds. A National flag drying from the mast pole, with fintering pennons streaming from gny ropes on each side, cowned the decorations. The streets of the city were thronged early in the morning with strangers and residents eager to witness the grand pageant. The Templars formed early in the morning with strangers and residents bands playing, marched through the trained affects to the place of starting.

MMENSE CROWDS.

Along the line of march stands had

It is estimated 20,000 men were in being a visiting Knights, and been occupied by spectators. Windows commanding a view of the procession till, reaching the Treasury, the head wheeled into Fifteenth atreet, were all premium and ladies faces peered from each at the scenes below. The arenue had been roped in to keep off the crowd and give fail room to the Eights for the display of their manoeurre.

Several bours before the time for the procession to move the people were litted in honor of the Chief Magistrate, as have been the spectacles it has seen. The luxuriant foliage of the street is fast disappearing, and much what is left is disappearing, and much what is left is spotted and speckled with the thousand dyes of October; but through the partly denuded branches, looking eastward from the circle, the grand procession seemed to writhe in and out, a marvel of musical motion, a wave of light, a flash of color, till the eye grew weary in watching, and the fancy reverted to K ights of other days and climes. When the head of the procession

K ights of other days and climes.

When the head of the procession reached Mount Vernon Square, at Ninth and K streets, it halted and the long train of moving men along the entire route of march was brought to rest. Soon afterwards it was again put in motion, and, with the first division formed in order at the reviewing stand in the square, the remainder of the column passed in review before Grand Master Roome and the other officers of the Roome and the other officers of the Roome and the other officers of the Grand Encampment. After passing this point the vast procession broke into a fragments, some of the organizatious, continuing to their quarters, while others disbanding in whole or in part were soon lost in the great ocean of humanity that had gazed and admired and applauded. The first division, the especial escort of the Grand Encampment, then recorted the Grand Master and members to Masonic Temple, where the Roome and the other officers of the members to Masonic Temple, where the first session of the Triennial Conclave was opened.

There have been larger parades in Washington; there have been Presides tial inaugural processions that numbered more people in line; the grand review in 1865 filled Pennsylvania avenue, one of the great and memorable thoroughfares of the world, all day for two successive days, from curb to curb, with its quarter of a million soldiers returning home from a successful war, but no spec-BEAT ALL FOR BEAUTY. view in 1805 filled Pennsylvania avenue, one of the great and menorable thoroughtares of the world, all day for two successive days, from ourb to curb, with its quarter of a million soldiers returning home from a successful war, but no spectacle combining so much that was grand in its proportions, beautiful to the eye and stimulating to the fancy, as this Knights Templar parade was over seen here before.

The Encampment began its business n secret conclave. The Jowa trouble immediate loomed up, and a resolution was offered excluding the members from was offered excluding the members from that State from the session. This resolution was carried and the Iowa members somewhat indignantly withdrew. The annual address of Grand Master Roome, who presided over the session, was read, which devoted a great deal of space to the Iowa trouble reviewing the whole matter. He said the Grand Commandry of that State had attempted to nullify the deliberate will of the Grand Encampment and the conthe Grand Encampment and the con-stitution, its deeds belied its empty words. Soon after the reading of Gen-eral Roome's address the conclave ad-

HISTORY OF THE KNIGHTS TEMPLAR.

An Order Nearly Eight Hundred Year Old-The Original Objects. The "Religious and Military Order of Knights Templar" dates back to the crusades. Although the present system differs entirely from the objects of the original Knights Templar, still many, if not all, the ceremonies have been tained. The original order, which was the Knights—issued rules and regula-tions, prepared expressly by St. Barnard, for its governance. Despite persecution the order has existed to the present the order has existed to the present time, although its ostensible objects have been changed. Jaques de Moiay, the grand master of the order, which had then become wealthy, was martyred by Phillip of France and Pope Clement, but before his death named his successor. Since that time the list of grand masters has not been broken. Under the protection of Free Missonry the secrets of the order have been preserved, and it is considered an honor to-day to hold membership with the Knights Templar. To become a member, the candidate

To become a member, the candidate must be a Royal Arch Mason, although must be a Royal Arch Mason, although there is not a vestige of Freemssorry in the ceremonies of the order. The emblems and banners show that the Knighthood is based on Christianity, pure and simple, while Masonry is nonsectarian in its character. The banner of the order is white, on which is displayed a red cross, with the motto, "In a hot aigno vinces"—in this sign we conquer. Among the jewels's the Paschal Lamb. The battle flag of the order is black and white. Both full and fatigue a dress are worn by the Knights. Full sides consists of black frock cost and and pants, baldric, sword, belt, chapeau, gauntlets and shoulder straps, with appropriate trimmings. For fatigue dress the same is worn, except that a cap with a red gross in front takes the place of the chapeau; the baldric is dispensed with and gloves are worn instead of gauntlets.

San Francisco, October 8.-A call for SAN FRANCISCO, October 8.—A call for a meeting of the Lesgue of Heaven and Earth, posted in Chinatown, reveals the strength and boldness of the Chinese secret society which has been prescribed in China since the Taiping rebellion, its existence here was known only to members, but it has grown much lately, and it is said that since the beginning of the year it has made its power felt against its enemies. It was originally founded by native Chinese to secure the overthrow of the Tartar dynasty and has now become, like the highbinder societies, a machine for blackmall and vengennee. Its peculiar feature is that its victims are removed completely, no trace of the corpse being left to serve as a clue to the crime. the present mode of trial in courts of

The committee formulated and presented a canon covering the entire procedure and the trial of a clergyman accompanying it, with an explanation secompanying it, with an explanation that the canon is merely offered to show the line upon which such a canon might be constructed.

The game promises to be a good one, for the Wheeling team will be sure to play their level best in the hope of securing the honorand fame that would result to them in case they should defeat a well organized League team who have been playing together all the season. The teams to be put in the field and the battery order will be as follows:

Philadelphia—Delehanty, 1. f.; Myers, 2d; Fogerty, c. f.; Thompson, r. f.; Mulvey, 3d; Clemants, c.; Farrar, 1st; Hallman, s. s.; Sanders, p.; Buffington, and Wheeling team—Nicholson, 2d; Bark ley, 1st; White, W., s. s.; George, r.; Stapleton, m.; Miller, 3d; White, Jos., I. f.; Morrison, p.; Burkett, sub.

It will be noticed that Delehanty will lead off for the Phillies. Wheeling's old second baseman will undoubtedly get a big hand when he steps' to the plate, and every one of the Wheeling team is deserving of warm recognition. There, ought to be a big and enhusiastic crowd present.

In Police Court yesterday morning, John Swan, the colored porter arrested early Monday morning, was fined $2 and costs for acting in a disorderly manner; the charge of carrying concealed weapons, a slang shot, which was also preferred against him, was dismissed and the slung-shot turned over to the police. Three cases of indecent exposure were dismissed with the light fines of $1 and costs, and two drunks were given the same dose. Jennie McBride was fined $1 and costs for disorderly conduct the night before, and in default of payment was sent to jail for five days. Ben Frazier, who assisted in the disturbance the frail Jennie raised, endeavored to escape the clutches of the police by going before a South Side justice and confessing to a charge of assault and battery, but the police pulled him in on a charge of disorderly, and he was still in the cooler last night despite the efforts of friends to get him out. The disturbance was caused by Frazier trying to make Jennie give him money.

To-night at the Opera House "Later On," one of H. Gratton Donnelly's funny skits, will be presented for the first time in this city, by a company of comedians, singers, dancers and pretty girls, who come here well recommended by the press of other cities. "Later On" is something that wasn't built to please the cities but it was created to delight the public, bring laughter and drive dull care to the dogs—and what more does anybody, want? Messrs. Fred Hallen and Joe Hart, the stars, have a well established reputation for being fun makers, and promise an enjoyable evening to all who attend their performance. Seasts can be reserved at House's.

There will be a "Little Nugget" matinee at the Grand this afternoon, and this evening the engagement of this popular company will be brought to a close. Those who attend to day's performances will be well pleased. Those clever comedians, the Cawthorns, are, if possible, better than ever before. The quartette does some very acceptable work in the vocal line, and with a larger cast than ever before, the new and joily of music, graceful dances and other conjucted work goes off in a most enjoyable fashion.

Her singing of the song "The Spider and the Fig" was as aristically done as ever.

There was practically but one opinion among the committee regarding a site for the proposed new jail and that was, that it should be built on the northeast quarter of the square in which the Public Building same their liberty of action. The Soleit stands, which would place the jail displayed, a counsiler square of the public stands, which would place the jail displayed in the public stands, which would place the jail displayed in the public square of the public built on the northeast quarter of the square in which the Public Building stands, which would place the jail directly in the rear of that part of the Public Building now occupied by the County. The property is at present occupied by the Alex. Rogers residence, the residence belonging to Mrs. Arthur I. Boreman, of Parkersburg, and occupied by Mrs. Mary Good, and some residences belonging to Mrs. Arthur I. Boreman, of Parkersburg, and occupied by Mrs. Mary Good, and some residences between that house and the Public Building, owned by Hannibal Forbes.

It was decided to recommend to the Board that the committee be instructed to proceed to acquire the property either by purchase or condemnation. It is the intention of the committee to lose no time in pushing this matter.

A contract was awarded I. Norris to whitewash the jail at his bid of $10, and the jail ow as authorised to have necessary glasing done.

The foreign visitors heard with amszement that in this comparatively small city half a million spindles were whirling and 14,000 looms were weaving miles per day of fabrics of all kinds.

As the train, hurried through New Hampshire during the afternoon, and when it stopped near the State line at Rochester, the New England railroad men of the section gathered to inspect the sturdy, plain engine that pulls the special train.

When the train enters a new system of railroad, one of the local engineers mounts the engine with Engineer Hart and prompts him as to safe speed, curves, grades and bridges on the way. The local engineer is known among the craft as a pilot.
